Cyvin, Ivan Gutman, 2013-04-17 This text is an attempt to outline the basic facts concerning Kekulé structures in benzenoid hydrocarbons their history applications and especially enumeration We further point out the numerous and often quite remarkable connections between this topic and various parts of combinatorics and discrete mathematics Our book is primarily aimed toward organic and theoretical chemists interested in the enumeration of Kekulé structures of conjugated hydrocarbons as well as to scientists working in the field of mathematical and computational chemistry The book may be of some relevance also to mathematicians wishing to learn about contemporary applications of combinatorics graph theory and other branches of discrete mathematics In 1985 when we decided to prepare these notes for publication we expected to be able to give a complete account of all known combinatorial formulas for the number of Kekulé structures of benzenoid hydrocarbons This turned out to be a much more difficult task than we initially realized only in 1986 some 60 new publications appeared dealing with the enumeration of Kekulé structures in benzenoids and closely related topics In any event we believe that we have collected and systematized the essential part of the presently existing results In addition to this we were delighted to see that the topics to which we have been devoted in the last few years nowadays form a rapidly expanding branch of mathematical chemistry which attracts the attention of a large number of researchers both chemists and mathematicians Agricultural Conservation United States. Agricultural Adjustment Agency, 1939 Building San Francisco's Parks, 1850-1930 Terence Young, 2004-02-16 In 1865 when San Francisco's Daily Evening Bulletin asked its readers if it were not time for the city to finally establish a public park residents had only private gardens and small urban squares where they could retreat from urban crowding noise and filth. Five short years later city supervisors approved the creation of Golden Gate Park, the second largest urban park in America. Over the next sixty years and particularly after 1900 a network of smaller parks and parkways was built, turning San Francisco into one of the nation's greenest cities. In Building San Francisco's Parks 1850-1930, Terence Young traces the history of San Francisco's park system from the earliest city plans which made no provision for a public park through the private garden movement of the 1850s and 1860, Frederick Law Olmsted's early involvement in developing a comprehensive parks plan, the design and construction of Golden Gate Park, and finally to the expansion of green space in the first third of the twentieth century. Young documents this history in terms of the four social ideals that guided America's urban park advocates and planners in this period: public health, prosperity, social coherence, and democratic equality. He also differentiates between two periods in the history of American park building, each defined by a distinctive attitude towards improving nature: the romantic approach which prevailed from the 1860s to the 1880s emphasized the beauty of nature, while the rationalistic approach dominant from the 1880s to the 1920s saw nature as the best setting for uplifting activities such as athletics and education. Building San Francisco's Parks 1850-1930 maps the political, cultural, and social dimensions of landscape design in urban America and offers new insights into the transformation of San Francisco's physical environment and quality of life through its world famous park system. Baseball's Dead of World War II, Gary Bedingfield, 2015-01-27. While most fans know that baseball stars Ted Williams, Hank Greenberg, and Bob Feller served in the military during World War II, few can name the two major leaguers who died in action. They were catcher Harry O'Neill and outfielder Elmer Gedeon. Far fewer still are aware that another 125 minor league players also lost their lives during the war. This book draws on extensive research and interviews to bring their personal lives, baseball careers, and wartime service to light. Census Reports, 1894. Report of the Railroad Commission of Wisconsin to the Legislature on Water Powers, Railroad Commission of Wisconsin, 1915. Agricultural Adjustment, a Report (subtitle Varies), United States Agricultural Adjustment Agency, 1937.
