Conifers William K. Smith,Thomas M. Hinckley,1995 Coniferous forests are among the most important of ecosystems These forests are widespread and influence both the financial and biological health of our globe This book focuses attention on conifers and how these trees acquire allocate and utilize the resources that sustain this crucial productivity An international team of experts has surveyed and synthesized information from an expanding area of inquiry The first half of the book describes how resources are acquired both by means of photosynthesis and through root systems The latter half of the volume focuses upon how resources are stored and used As conifers continue as a resource and ever increasingly important contributor to the regional and global environmental sustainability this book will help establish how much sustainability can be expected and maintained      Biophysical Ecology D. M. Gates,2012-12-06 The objective of this book is to make analytical methods available to students of ecology The text deals with concepts of energy exchange gas exchange and chemical kinetics involving the interactions of plants and animals with their environments The first four chapters are designed to show the applications of biophysical ecology in a preliminary simplified manner Chapters 5 10 treating the topics of radiation convection conduction and evaporation are concerned with the physical environment The spectral properties of radiation and matter are thoroughly described as well as the geometrical instantaneous daily and annual amounts of both shortwave and longwave radiation Later chapters give the more elaborate analytical methods necessary for the study of photosynthesis in plants and energy budgets in animals The final chapter describes the temperature responses of plants and animals The discipline of biophysical ecology is rapidly growing and some important topics and references are not included due to limitations of space cost and time The methodology of some aspects of ecology is illustrated by the subject matter of this book It is hoped that future students of the subject will carry it far beyond its present status Ideas for advancing the subject matter of biophysical ecology exceed individual capacities for effort and even today many investigators in ecology are studying subjects for which they are inadequately prepared The potential of modern science in the minds and hands of skilled investigators to of the interactions of organisms with their advance our understanding environment is enormous

Disturbance and Ecosystems H. A. Mooney,M. Godron,2012-12-06 The earth s landscapes are being increasingly impacted by the activities of man Unfortunately we do not have a full understanding of the consequences of these disturbances on the earth s productive capacity This problem was addressed by a group of French and U S ecologists who are specialists at levels of integration extending from genetics to the biosphere at a meeting at Stanford California sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique With a few important exceptions it was found at this meeting that most man induced disturbances of ecosystems can be viewed as large scale patterns of disturbances that have occurred generally on a small scale in ecosystems through evolutionary time Man has induced dramatic large scale changes in the environment which must be viewed at the biosphere level Acid deposition and CO increase are two 2 examples of the consequences of man s increased utilization of fossil fuels It is a matter of considerable concern that we cannot yet fully predict the ecological consequences of these environmental changes Such problems must be addressed at the international level yet substantive mechanisms to do this are not available

Regenerating British Columbia's Forests R. Parish,C. M. Johnson,G. Montgomery,A. Vyse,R. A. Willis,D. Winston,D.P. Lavender,2011-11-01 Reforestation is a subject vital to the economy of British Columbia which depends heavily on its forests a valuable but expendable resource This book provides silviculturalists with a broad reference to the science and technology of reforestation in the Canadian province that forms the single most diverse forest region in North America The work combines for the first time both experiences recorded from practical reforestation projects and the results of scientific investigations The chapters of Regenerating British Columbia s Forests were compiled and reviewed by experts in each field of discussion Topics include the physiological bases for seedling vigour and the interaction of reforestation with seedling physiology the ecology of British Columbia s bioclimatic zones and the role of ecological site classification the application of financial analyses to reforestation decisions current technology in manual mechanical and chemical site preparation and in the use of fire to prepare planting sites recent progress in tree genetics and breeding and its relevance to the production of tree propagules nursery technology methodology in planting evaluation techniques of plantation release and the role of insects disease and small mammals and birds in the reforestation process Regenerating British Columbia s Forests will assist those responsible for planning reforestation projects to reach informed decisions and will challenge them to consider primarily the biological factors basic to reforestation success rather than short term costs and production technology Although its main audience is practising foresters and forestry students of British Columbia the text will be of considerable interest to foresters in other parts of Canada the United States and Europe who manage reforestation
