Melendres,2012-12-06 Electrochemistry is one of the oldest branches of Physical Chemistry Having its foundations in the work of Faraday Arrhenius and others it evolved from the study of transport in electrolyte solutions to that of electrode kinetics Kinetic methods are inherently unable to identify unequivocally the species involved in a reaction Therefore beginning in the 70s many spectroscopic and diffraction techniques were applied to the study of the electrode electrolyte interface in order to identify intermediary reaction species and even the spatial arrangement of atoms or molecules at the interface In order to disseminate these techniques a NATO Advanced Study Institute was held at Puerto de la Cruz Tenerife Canary Islands Spain from July 2 to 15 1988 The Institute consisted of tutorial type lectures poster sessions and round table discussions It was attended by over 65 participants from NATO member countries and others from Argentina and Japan In the present volume most of the lectures presented at the Institute have been collected At least one chapter is devoted to each technique Emphasis has been made on case studies rather than theory which can be found in textbooks and other publications Our purpose in this book is to help the electrochemists uninitiated in spectroscopic methods to decide which techniques would be suitable for application to their particular problems We thank all the lecturers who contributed to this volume and even those UHPs Unrepentant Habitual Procrastinators who did not in spite of our urgings to do so
