With the transformation and expansion of the nineteenth century American literary canon in the past two decades the work of the era's American women poets has come to be widely anthologized But scant scholarship has arisen to make full sense of it From School to Salon responds to this glaring gap Mary Loeffelholz presents the work of nineteenth century women poets in the context of the history culture and politics of the times She uses a series of case studies to discuss why the recovery of nineteenth century women's poetry has been a process of anthologization without succeeding analysis At the same time she provides a much needed account of the changing social contexts through which nineteenth century American women became poets initially by reading reciting writing and publishing poetry in school and later by doing those same things in literary salons institutions created by the high culture movement of the day Along the way Loeffelholz provides detailed analyses of the poetry much of which has received little or no recent critical attention She focuses on the works of a remarkably diverse array of poets including Lucretia Maria Davidson Lydia Sigourney Maria Lowell Frances Ellen Watkins Harper Emily Dickinson Helen Hunt Jackson and Annie Fields Impeccably researched and gracefully written From School to Salon moves the study of nineteenth century women's poetry to a new and momentous level Journal of the Senate, Legislature of the State of California California. The Vatican's opening of its archives in 2006 for the period of the papacy of Pius XI 1922-1939 has prompted a burst of historical research which is not only shedding new light on the role of the Holy See and the Church in this period of extraordinary political and social turmoil but also on some of the major world events of this period In 2008 a number of institutions created a research network bringing together scholars from different countries who are working in these archives and highlighting its emerging work to the broader scholarly community This book represents the proceedings from a conference of this research network held in Providence Rhode Island at the Brown University in October 2010 Series Christianity and History Series of the John XXIII Foundation for Religious Studies in Bologna Vol 11 As the essays reveal such a historic decision will impact the way that scholars interpret modern church history for years to come Yet as coeditor Charles Gallagher S J reminds us in his introduction the opening will also allow scholars to uncover a history which is not only papal but political cultural economic and global p 17 The Catholic Historical Review Vol 100 No 2 Spring 2014 *pt.
