Windows of the Soul Martin Porter, 2005-09-29 In late fifteenth century Florence Renaissance humanists rediscovered a secret natural language hidden in the visual wisdom of the proverb the eyes are the windows of the soul Through its magical prism the language of eyes faces voices laughs walks even stones plants and animals all became windows into the souls of other people of oneself of nature and ultimately of God Some saw in its words the perfect hieroglyphic language by which Adam had first named nature which when combined with the art of memory could bring about a form of inner writing or mystical self transformation Yet many others dismissed it as a collection of arbitrary conventions superstitious enigmas or gypsy riddles Embroiled in the religious persecution of the Reformation rejected as a science during the Scientific Revolution in the age of Enlightenment physiognomy came to be seen as nothing more than an amusing entertainment But with the dawn of Romanticism be it in the realms of science religion or poetry some began to see that physiognomy was no game and the flame of serious interest in physiognomy was once again rekindled Combining book history and visual history Dr Porter reconstructs this physiognomical eye interprets the way in which books on physiognomy were read and traces the wider intellectual social and cultural changes that contributed to the metamorphosis of this way of beholding oneself and the natural world from the Renaissance to the dawn of Romanticism
