Organelle and Molecular Targeting Lara Scheherazade Milane, Mansoor M. Amiji, 2021-12-27 We have surpassed the omics era and are truly in the Age of Molecular Therapeutics The fast paced development of SARS CoV 2 vaccines such as the mRNA vaccines encoding the viral spike protein demonstrated the need for and capability of molecular therapy and nanotechnology based solutions for drug delivery In record speed the SARS CoV 2 viral RNA genome was sequenced and shared with the scientific community allowing the rapid design of molecular therapeutics The mRNA vaccines exploit the host cell endoplasmic reticulum to produce viral spike proteins for antigen presentation and recognition by the innate and adaptive immune system Lipid nanoparticles enable the delivery of the fragile degradation sensitive nucleic acid payloads Molecular based therapeutics and nanotechnology solutions continue to drive the scientific and medical response to the COVID 19 pandemic as new mRNA DNA and protein based vaccines are developed and approved and the emergency use approved vaccines are rapidly manufactured and distributed throughout the globe The need for molecular therapies and drug delivery solutions is clear and as these therapies progress and become more specialized there will be important advancements in organelle targeting For example using organelle targeting to direct lipid nanoparticles with mRNA payloads to the endoplasmic reticulum would increase the efficacy of mRNA vaccines reducing the required dose and therefore the biomanufacturing demand Likewise improving the delivery of DNA therapeutics to the nucleus would improve efficacy Organelles and molecules have always been drug targets but until recently we have not had the tools or capability to design and develop such highly specific therapeutics. Organelle targeting has far reaching implications. For example mitochondria are central to both energy production and intrinsic apoptosis. Effectively targeting and manipulating mitochondria has therapeutic applications for diseases such as myopathies, cancer, neurodegeneration, progerias, diabetes, and the natural aging process. The SARS CoV 2 vaccines that exploit the endoplasmic reticulum for mRNA vaccines and the nucleic translational process DNA vaccines attest to the need for organelle and molecular therapeutics. This book covers the status, demand, and future of organelle and molecularly targeted therapeutics that are critical to the advancement of modern medicine. Organelle and molecular targeting is the drug design and drug delivery approach of today, and the future understanding of this approach is essential for students, scientists, and clinicians contributing to modern medicine. Alan Friedlander, Richard Allan Gerber, 2018-11-26. The Civil Rights Act of 1875 enacted March 1, 1875, banned racial discrimination in public accommodations, hotels, public conveyances, and places of public amusement. In 1883, the U.S. Supreme Court declared the law unconstitutional, ushering in generations of segregation until 1964. This first full length study of the Act covers the years of debates in Congress and some forty state studies of the midterm elections of 1874 in which many supporting Republicans lost their seats. They returned to pass the Act in the short session of Congress. This book utilizes an army of primary sources from unpublished manuscripts, rare newspaper accounts, memoir materials, and official documents to demonstrate that Republicans were motivated primarily by an ideology that civil equality would produce social order in the defeated southern states. Oberlin Ohio stood in the vanguard of the abolition and black freedom movements The community including co founded Oberlin College strove to end slavery and establish full equality for all Yet in the half century after the Union victory Oberlin's resolute stand for racial justice eroded as race based discrimination pressed down on its African American citizens In Elusive Utopia noted historians Gary J Kornblith and Carol Lasser tell the story of how in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Oberlin residents black and white understood and acted upon their changing perceptions of race ultimately resulting in the imposition of a color line Founded as a utopian experiment in 1833 Oberlin embraced radical racial egalitarianism in its formative years By the eve of the Civil War when 20 percent of its local population was black the community modeled progressive racial relations that while imperfect shone as strikingly more advanced than in either the American South or North Emancipation and the passage of the Civil War amendments seemed to confirm Oberlin's egalitarian values Yet contrary to the expectations of its idealistic founders Oberlin's residents of color fell increasingly behind their white peers economically in the years after the war Moreover leaders of the white dominated temperance movement conflated class color and respectability resulting in stigmatization of black residents Over time many white Oberlinians came to view black poverty as the result of personal failings practiced residential segregation endorsed racially differentiated education in public schools and excluded people of color from local government By 1920 Oberlin's racial utopian vision had dissipated leaving the community to join the racist mainstream of American society Drawing from newspapers pamphlets organizational records memoirs census materials and tax lists Elusive Utopia traces the rise and fall of Oberlin's idealistic vision and commitment to racial equality in a pivotal era in American history
