Handbook of Greener Synthesis of Nanomaterials and Compounds Boris Kharisov, Oxana Kharissova, 2021-04-07 Modern techniques to produce nanoparticles, nanomaterials and nanocomposites are based on approaches that frequently involve high costs, inefficiencies and negative environmental impacts. As such, there has been a real drive to develop and apply approaches that are more efficient and benign. The Handbook of Greener Synthesis of Nanomaterials and Compounds provides a comprehensive review of developments in this field, combining foundational green and nano chemistry with the key information researchers need to assess, select and apply the most appropriate green synthesis approaches to their own work. Volume 2: Synthesis at the Macroscale and Nanoscale explores synthesis at different scales. Beginning with a selection of chapters discussing a range of macroscale topics, the book goes on to explore such important areas as metal nanoparticle synthesis, biogenic synthesis and synthesis of enzymes. Further chapters explore the role of Metal-Organic Frameworks in greener synthesis, synthesis from renewable sources and impacts of nanomaterials synthesized by greener methods. Discusses the synthesis of widely different groups of chemical compounds and distinct materials. Reviews synthesis at both the macro and nanoscales, including information on metal-organic frameworks, carbon dots and ionic liquids. Provides examples of applications to support learning and guide implementation of theory in practice. Fluid Catalytic Cracking VII:

, 2011-09-22 Since 1987 the Petroleum Division of the American Chemical Society (ACS) has sponsored at 3 year intervals an international symposium on fluid cracking catalysts (FCC) technology. This volume collects the recent progress of this technology as reported in the papers presented during the 232th National Meeting of the ACS in San Francisco, September 10-14, 2006. Sixty-six years after the introduction of the fluid cracking catalyst process, it remains the main process of gasoline generation for the estimated 237 million cars on US roads. Catalysts testing and evaluation still remains a subject of interest, debate and controversy. Lambda sweep testing, testing of SO_x, NO_x and combustion promoters have been discussed in details together with catalyst evaluation for atmospheric residues and metal contaminated oils cracking. Of particular interest has been the introduction of novel concept in process design aimed at improving cracked product selectivity such as two stage risers for better gasoline and olefins production and downer technology for high severity processes. The importance of solid state nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) in the study of crude oils, catalysts and reaction products are illustrated by several examples. Two contributions describe the use of predictive methods to understand FCC aging and deactivation and personal overviews of the development of SO_x and combustion promoters technology are presented. Presents findings from the tri-annual international symposium on fluid cracking catalysts (FCC) technology sponsored by the Petroleum Division of the American Chemical Society (ACS). Two contributions describe the use of predictive methods to understand FCC aging and deactivation. Personal overviews by the authors of the development of SO_x and combustion promoters technology.
