Commerce Extérieur Par Produits ,1994 Black Africans in Renaissance Europe T. F. Earle,K. J. P. Lowe,2005-05-26 This highly original book opens up the almost entirely neglected area of the black African presence in Western Europe during the Renaissance Covering history literature art history and anthropology it investigates a whole range of black African experience and representation across Renaissance Europe from various types of slavery to black musicians and dancers from real and symbolic Africans at court to the views of the Catholic Church and from writers of African descent to Black African criminality Their findings demonstrate the variety and complexity of black African life in fifteenth and sixteenth century Europe and how it was affected by firmly held preconceptions relating to the African continent and its inhabitants reinforced by Renaissance ideas and conditions Of enormous importance both for European and American history this book mixes empirical material and theoretical approaches and addresses such issues as stereotypes changing black African identity and cultural representation in art and literature Statistiske meddelelser ,1957

Black Lives in the English Archives, 1500-1677 Imtiaz Habib,2017-05-15 Containing an urgently needed archival database of historical evidence this volume includes both a consolidated presentation of the documentary records of black people in Tudor and Stuart England and an interpretive narrative that confirms and significantly extends the insights of current theoretical excursus on race in early modern England Here for the first time Imtiaz Habib collects the scattered references to black people whether from Africa India or America in sixteenth and seventeenth century England and arranges them into a systematic chronological descriptive index He offers an extended historical and theoretical interpretation of the records in six chapters which serve as an introductory guide to the index even as they articulate a specific argument about the meaning of the records Both the archival information and interpretive scholarship provide a strong framework from which future historical debates on race in early modern England can proceed The Mediterranean Apprenticeship of British Slavery Gustav Ungerer, 2008-02-27 The present study attempts to map out neglected research territory and to marshal a powerful body of silenced evidence that disproves the current view that the English in early modern Europe were laggards in exploiting black Africans and Moors as slaves and domestic servants. The findings of the author's researches carried out in Spanish and English archives have brought to light that the dawn of British black slavery has to be set back to the 1480s. A crop of records unearthed in Seville, Simancas, Sanlúcar de Barrameda and Santa Cruz de Tenerife leave no doubt about the fact that the English merchants resident in Andalusia at the turn of the 15th-16th centuries were the pioneers of British transatlantic slavery. REVISTA MUNDO NEGRO Por Manuel Fernández Los hallazgos de G. Ungerer se abren un nuevo campo de investigación histórica con relación al comercio de esclavos africanos por y en el Reino Unido. Las fuentes consultadas indican que el primer comerciante de esclavos no fue Sir John Hawkins como ven a proclamando la historiografía británica. Este libro mantiene que los británicos se iniciaron en el trata de esclavos en el Mediterráneo y particularmente en Andalucía. El primer británico traficante de esclavos se llamaba William de la Fuente, comerciante de Bristol y con actividades comerciales en Huelva. Las fuentes manejadas para esta tesis están en el Archivo General de Indias, Archivo General de Simancas, Archivo Histórico de la Provincia de Sevilla y Tenerife. Como socios de comerciantes españoles y portugueses residentes en Andalucía, los británicos se fueron preparando para entrar de lleno en la floreciente trata de esclavos. La presencia de esclavos negros era notoria en la corte de Enrique VII y Enrique VIII parece ser que en las Islas Británicas estaba prohibida en esa época la esclavitud de británicos pero no la de moros y negro. Dear Friend and Colleague You may be interested to know that my book on the beginnings of British black slavery was shortlisted for the ESSE European Society for the Study of English Book Awards to be given on the 10th ESSE Conference in Turin last August. The awards were finally allotted to three colleagues who had also been shortlisted and my book regrettably was classified under Honourable Mentions. This means that the book is going to be recommended to the 8000 ESSE members in the European Messenger, the journal of the society and also in the society's website www.essenglish.org/bookaward.html. I therefore hope that the sale of the book has been gathering some momentum this autumn. With best wishes Climate Information for Public Health Action

Madeleine C. Thomson, Simon J. Mason, 2018-09-21 Policy makers are increasingly concerned about the impact of climate variability and change on the health of vulnerable populations. Variations and trends in climatic factors and extreme weather events impact many health outcomes including malaria, heat stress and undernutrition. Climate Information for Public Health Action is based on the premise that climate knowledge and information can help protect the public from climate sensitive health risks. With a focus on infectious disease, hydro-meteorological disasters and nutrition, the book explores why, when and how data on the historical, current and future from days to decades, climate can be incorporated into health decision making. Created as a collaborative effort between climate and health experts, this book targets a broad technical public health community alongside development practitioners and policy makers engaged in climate change adaptation. It may also guide climate experts in the development of climate services tailored to health needs Written in an accessible informative style while maintaining the highest technical and scientific standards it will also be a valuable resource for students and academics studying and working in the emerging field of environment and health The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.tandfebooks.com/doi/view/10.4324/9781315115603> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license
