Cellular and Molecular Biology of Intermediate Filaments R.D. Goldman,P.M. Steinert,2013-06-29 Research activity on intermediate filaments IF has increased dramatically over the past decade For the most part this surge of interest is due to their identification as ubiquitous constituents of the cytoskeleton and karyoskeleton nuclear matrix of eukaryotic cells and the fact that we know very little regarding their functions In sharp contrast to the other major cytoskeletal systems microfilaments and microtubules IF exhibit a high degree of heterogeneity with regard to their protein subunit composition Indeed one can only marvel at the number of different IF polypeptides their associated proteins IFAP and consequently the number of genes involved in encoding the multiple constituents of the various IF networks found in different cell types The chapters in this book demonstrate how various experimental approaches involving cellular molecular biochemical and immunological methods have been utilized to generate information regarding the structure and function of IF To this end we have gathered together chapters from experts in the major fields of IF research In each chapter the authors have combined reviews of the available scientific literature with their own ideas on current and future directions for IF research The chapters have been divided into five major sections which are concerned with the subcellular organization of IF the molecular structure of IF the differential expression of IF genes descriptions of associated proteins involved in the intracellular organization of IF and finally an analysis of the changes seen in IF in pathological conditions      Biochemical and Structural Dynamics of the Cell Nucleus Eugenia Wang,2012-12-02 Biochemical and Structural Dynamics of the Cell Nucleus is a collection of papers dealing with the biology of the cell nucleus The collection describes the methods used in isolating and defining the chemistry and functional interactions of the nuclear components Some papers also discuss the diversity of the roles that these components play in regulating cellular phenotypes differentiation and proliferation One paper discusses the possible role for lamin A in muscle differentiations where due to its presence and the appearance of A type lamins during the differentiation of a number of cell types lamin A or any of its isoelectric variants cannot specifically be responsible for the induction of muscle specific gene expression The work of Loewinger and McKeon 1988 can show evidence of the role for lamin A in the differential expression of muscle specific genes during the process of myogenesis if the investigator uses an alternative method Several papers also discuss the dynamics of assembly and disassembly of the nuclear lamina and envelope DNA and RNA binding proteins as well as the nucleocytoplasmic transport The collection can prove valuable to biochemists cellular biologists microbiologists and molecular biologists      Functional Organization of The Nucleus ,1992-02-03 Functional Organization of The Nucleus      Bradstreet's ,1904      Inquiry Into Operations of Shipping Board United States.
