Pub* United States. Hydrographic Office,1928 Monthly Summary of Foreign Commerce of the United States United States. Bureau of the Census,1908 Accompanied by annual issue in 1944 and by quarterly cumulative issues beginning in 1945 Field Study of Air Content Stability in the Slipform Paving Process ,2012 This study evaluated the impacts of construction on the air content and air void system structure of Portland cement concrete pavements The primary intent was to quantify the air content of fresh concrete before and after it has gone through the slipform paver The air void system parameters of hardened concrete were then assessed using cast and extracted core specimens The results of the air content testing on fresh concrete and the concrete cylinder specimens cast in the field suggested that there is some loss of air as the concrete passes through the paver Laboratory testing performed on cores extracted from the pavement did not provide any conclusive evidence that entrained air is lost during the slipform paving process In fact many of the extracted cores had measured air content values that were much higher than the specification requirement If excessive this could result in increased permeability and low strength related issues Although a rigorous statistical analysis was not performed the results suggest that the air content testing on fresh concrete is not capturing the true air content of the concrete placed with a slipform paver The fresh concrete air content is generally lower than the air content measured in the cores Directory University of Northern Colorado,1987 Mining Journal, Railway & Commercial Gazette ,1912 Parliamentary Papers Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons,1918 California State and Local Taxation Norman H. Lane,1987 Fluid-mineral Equilibria in Hydrothermal Systems R. W. Henley,1984 Geothermal Fluids Keith Nicholson,1993-10-26 This book introduces aqueous geochemistry applied to geothermal systems It is specifically designed for readers first entering into the world of geothermal energy from a variety of scientific and engineering backgrounds and consequently is not intended to be the last word on geothermal chemistry Instead it is intended to provide readers with sufficient background knowledge to permit them to subsequently understand more complex texts and scientific papers on geothermal energy The book is structured into two parts The first explains how geothermal fluids and their associated chemistry evolve and shows how the chemistry of these fluids can be used to deduce information about the resource The second part concentrates on survey techniques explaining how these should be performed and the procedures which need to be adopted to ensure reliable sampling and analytical data are obtained A geothermal system requires a heat source and a fluid which transfers the heat towards the surface The fluid could be molten rock magma or water This book concentrates on the chemistry of the water or hydrothermal systems Consequently magma energy systems are not considered Hot dry rock HDR systems are similarly outside the scope of this text principally because they contain no indigenous fluid for study Both magma energy and HDR systems have potential as energy sources but await technological developments before they can be exploited commercially Geothermal systems based on water however are proven energy resources which have been successfully developed throughout the world
