Presenting and Representing Environments Graham Humphrys,Michael Williams,2006-01-27 The presentation and representation of the environment occurs throughout academia and across all news media The strict protocols of science often clash with environmental information available from sources that dwell on subjective aesthetic emotional and personal sensitivities This book challenge the reader as student teacher researcher or policy maker to reflect critically on the ways that environments are studied interpreted presented and represented in education and public policy Fieldwork in Geography: Reflections, Perspectives and Actions Rod Gerber,Goh Kim Chuan,2013-03-14 Geographers regard fieldwork as a vital instrument for understanding our world through direct experience for gathering basic data about this world and as a fundamental method for enacting geographical education The range of international geography and educational experts who contributed to this volume has demonstrated that the concept of fieldwork has a considerable history in the field of geography They have demonstrated that the theoretical aspects of fieldwork have been interpreted differently in regions around the world but the importance of fieldwork remains strong globally A fresh look at the pedagogic implications for fieldwork in formal education offers ideas both for promoting it in geographical education and for maintaining its place in the geography curriculum Audience Forward looking geographers and educators now recognise that alternative strategies especially those involving the use of information technology should be developed to reaffirm the centrality of fieldwork in geographical and wider education Geography: Discipline, Profession and Subject since 1870 Gary S.

Dunbar,2013-03-14 Gary S Dunbar Pro fesh yon al i zay shun pro fesh yon al i ZAY shun I do not think I like that word I am quite certain I do not like that word I said A F Martin of Oxford University in 1980 when I mentioned to him that I was making a study of the professionalization of geography in Europe and North America from about 1870 to 1930 I should not have been surprised by his reply because Mr Martin a highly regarded lecturer tutor and university man was in some ways a typical example of his generation of British geographers in that he did not have an advanced degree and his publication record was meager Except for a single remarkable essay Martin 1951 he was not well known in the field of geography at least not outside the United Kingdom Was he then a professional geographer Yes indeed because he was a full time scholar in a distinguished university even though he lacked the sort of credentials that have been demanded of subsequent generations of scholars at Oxford and elsewhere I certainly do not mean to denigrate Martin or his ilk I am simply using this anecdote to launch a book on the emergence of modern geography Statistics of Income for ... ,1951 Pulp, Paper and Board

Industry Report, 1950 Time, Space, and Society A. Kellerman, 2012-12-06 Time and space are two of the most basic dimensions of human life They envelop all human beings from birth to death As such they provide the context for human existence At the same time however time and space also serve as major influencing factors in mankind's actions Hence a vast literature has developed on time and space as separate dimensions and recently on time space as joint dimensions Interestingly enough the social connotations of time and space have mostly been studied with the individual human being in mind The more societal significance of time and space whether separately or jointly have been relatively neglected It is the purpose of this volume to help fill this lacuna through discussions on some of the many junctions of time space and society at large The discussion will naturally involve concepts and findings from more than just one discipline notably geography sociology social history and political science It is thus obvious that the topic may be highlighted from several perspectives Given my own education and work the approach will lean more to the geographical perspective Geography has a special merit as an integrating framework for the study of time space and society It is a discipline that has space at the center of its raison d'être and as such has always striven for integration holism and comprehensiveness Modelling Geographical Systems B. Boots, A. Okabe, R. Thomas, 2013-11-11 Within the realm of quantitative geography systems modelling is specifically concerned with understanding those relationships that influence the attributes of phenomena located in space and time The intention is to replicate the main processes influencing a system's behaviour and thereby assist its management through a capability to estimate future change Over the last few decades one of the major institutional initiatives for promoting such research has been provided by specialised Study Groups and Commissions established by the International Geographical Union IGU These scholarly networks have aimed to co-ordinate international research agendas for geographical systems modelling and their activities have been recorded in both edited volumes Fischer and Getis 1997 and special issues of learned journals Wilkinson and Boots 2000 Leung and Okabe 2001 Presently this facilitative task is the charge of the Commission on Modelling Geographical Systems CMGS appointed at the IGU Hague Congress in 1996 and chaired by Barry Boots 1996 2000 and Richard Thomas 2000 present Set against this background this book provides a perspective on the work of the CMGS from 1996 until the IGU Seoul Congress in August 2000 through a collection of papers first presented to our sessions at this event Moreover a number of Japanese delegates were attracted to this Asian venue and their contributions provide many new ideas concerning the implementation of systems analysis Tourism vs Environment P.P. Wong, 1993-09-30 P.P. Wong ABSTRACT Tourism is environmentally dependent The unique character of coastal areas gives rise to a distinctive tourist development Although accounts on the impacts of coastal tourism can be found in works relating to tourism in general there are few works specifically on coastal tourism This present volume focuses on the physical environment of coastal tourism particularly the geomorphological aspects The papers deal with basic aspects of the coastal environment for tourism methodologies for assessing the coastal environment for tourism and empirical studies of various types of coastal environment with tourism development The resulting generalisations are expected to be applied elsewhere

TOURISM AND ENVIRONMENT Environment has various meanings for tourism In its broadest sense the environment includes all natural and cultural elements as in OECD's 1981 definition to encompass the natural built and cultural aspects This holistic approach is encouraged in understanding the potential impacts arising from tourism A narrower meaning of environment is the natural and built environment as used by Cohen 1978 and Inskeep 1991 339 Environment can also be restricted to the natural or physical environment in order to distinguish it from the economic and social aspects of tourism as used by tourism researchers e g Mathieson and Wall 1982 Pearce 1989 This approach is used predominantly in this volume Various relationships between tourism and the physical aspects of the coast are discussed There are basic relationships between environment and tourism Tourism is environmentally dependent and the environment is vulnerable to the impact of tourism

Region as a Socio-environmental System D. Nir, 2012-12-06 2 society would be a free anarchic society an without archos ruler a society in which each individual is responsible for the relationship between himself and the society By inner persuasion we must live by making the maximum contribution of our physical and mental assets combined with minimal charge against and exploitation of the society We must contribute to society as much as possible because directly and indirectly we enjoy the contributions of the global society in which we live and of which we are a part To achieve this goal we must know not only ourselves but also the society in which we live A society is not uniform It is composed of mosaics of people of varying characteristics structured in different patterns and groups the qualities of which we must know because upon them depends our own place in the society Were the world uniform of feature and society there would no place for regional geography But because the world varies in form and its societies are different study of the differentiation of the world's surface and the regional geography as the people who live on it is an important tool for understanding the society in which we live particularly when our goal is to live with it in harmony

Recreational Uses of Coastal Areas P. Fabbri, 2012-12-06 Human clustering in coastal areas The coastal zone has gained a solid reputation as a place vocated for recreational activities and this is generally related to the presence of the sea The relationship however does not appear univocal or simple the sea can be perceived as a hostile element by humans and the more general question of whether the presence of the shore is in itself a favourable repulsive or irrelevant factor to settlement is a debatable point at least for pre industrial societies Back in the early part of the 19th century Friedrich Hegel regarded oceans and rivers as unifying elements rather than dividing ones thus implying a trend towards the concentration of human settlements along them The sea he wrote stimulates 1 courage and conquest as well as profit and plunder although he realized that this did not equally apply to all maritime peoples In Hegel s view different approaches to the sea were mainly the results of cultural factors and in fact he recognized that some people living in coastal areas perceive the sea as a dangerous and alien place and the shore as aftnis terrae
