Office,1962      The Subversive Activities Prevention Law of Japan Cecil H. Uyebara,2010 The Subversive Activities
Prevention Law SAPL was the last major controversial law to be drafted at the end of the Allied Occupation of Japan 1945 1952 which was managed and controlled by General Headquarters GHQ under U S General MacArthur and was enacted into law after Japan had regained its formal independence in 1952. Soon after the Occupation began prewar Japanese internal security laws were ordered abolished by the Occupation. Now that Japan would be regaining its independence in 1952 there was urgency to creating a new integrated national internal security law to fill the vacuum created by the Occupation. 1945 1952 The Subversive Activities Prevention Law was to be the centerpiece for maintaining internal security in the new independent Japan. It turned out to be an extremely controversial law that was vociferously opposed by the political opposition in and out of the Diet in light of the prewar history surrounding how such internal security laws were implemented by the state security apparatus. The demonstrations in 1951-52 against the proposed law organized by the labor unions were the largest, loudest, and most determined since the end of the war. This publication is the first analysis in English on how this law was drafted and debated, supported and opposed, using the 20 drafts of the law and the subsequent deliberations concerning the proposed law in the Houses of Representatives and Councillors. A short epilogue since over 50 years have elapsed since the law was initially enacted in 1952 analyzes the implementation of the law during these years. The Subversive Activities Prevention Law of Japan: Its Creation 1951-1952 will be of particular interest to those studying the Allied Occupation of Japan, the Japanese political and legislative process, and its internal security laws.
